

Arne Uppheim

Director of Product Management for SMB Security, Avast

Arne Uppheim is Director of Product Management for SMB Security at Avast, the global leader in digital security products for businesses and consumers. Arne leads the global product strategy for the company's Avast Business product portfolio.

With over 20 years of product management and engineering experience in security, online, and mobile services, Arne excels at building and leading teams and driving effective product strategy and execution.

Prior to joining Avast, he was VP of Storage and Security at Telenor Group, a major global mobile operator. Previous to this, he was chief technology officer for security provider Norman Safeground (acquired by AVG in 2014) and has held progressively senior product positions within Microsoft's Western Europe division. Arne has also held chairman of the board roles at Telenor Capture AS, a development company for Telenor digital services, and Netlife Backup Solutions AS. A published author, Arne's My First Internet book was Norway's earliest and all-time best-selling book about the Internet. He also started the Norwegian edition of IDG's Industry Standard publication. Originally from Norway, Arne now resides in Prague.
